What do I need to know about the Building and Joinery market?

The following summary statistics have been taken from market research reports and reliable resources that the Information Service uses to compile industry information. They should give you an indication of how your industry is faring at present and whether there is demand for your type of business:

- The value of the UK housebuilding sector is estimated to grow by 4.2% to reach £44.8 billion in 2019. The continued growth of the sector during economic and political uncertainty demonstrates the instrumental nature of housing, which benefits from a continually growing population. (Mintel, House Building, UK October 2019).

- Over the five years through 2019-20, industry revenue is forecast to grow at a compound annual rate of 2.7% to reach just shy of £12 billion. Operating conditions are forecast to remain challenging in the short term, but opportunities are expected to remain against a backdrop of sustained policy support. Attempts to accelerate the new housing supply are anticipated to increase demand for industry services, although this is likely to be offset by lulls in new private investment in commercial construction. (IBISWorld, Joinery Installation in the UK, July 2019).

- According to professional services firm Begbies Traynor, the number of commercial building contractors under “significant financial distress” increased by 5.3% in the year through March 2019. While remuneration has proven volatile, with contractors either relying on a backlogged order book or framework agreements with public-sector clients to sustain revenue, profitability has been pressured by high supply chain costs and a lack of high-yield opportunities in the private real estate market since the referendum. (IBISWorld, Commercial Building Construction in the UK, June 2019).

- The national organisation for this industry are the Scottish Building Federation and the Federation of Master Builders. Other organisations include the Home Builders Federation, the British Woodwork Federation, the National Association of Shopfitters, and the Guild of Master Craftsmen.
Where can I find more information on my market?

The Information Service has access to a number of databases which can offer more detail on this industry. Some of these reports are listed below - if you would like to be sent extracts from any of these reports, please contact us on 0300 013 4753 or email info@bgateway.com.

- Mintel – House Building, UK (October 2019). Firms also display a strong awareness of the context they operate in, with conscious plans to increase the provision of affordable housing, and strategically purchasing land in areas outside of London and the South East. This may also be driven by plans to phase out the Help to Buy scheme by 2023, which continues to be a crucial source of revenue for the sector.

- IBISWorld – Joinery Installation in the UK (July 2019). Particularly with regards to the short-term operating environment, ongoing market uncertainties related to the UK’s imminent withdrawal from the European Union are likely to continue to constrain investor sentiment until either this uncertainty dissipates or economic conditions stabilise. A cooling property market and lulls in new big-ticket commercial investment indicate that the potential yield for the construction sector supply chain could decrease, possibly weighing on profit margins and underlying revenue.

- IBISWorld – Building Construction in the UK (June 2019). The industry has a high level of competition, epitomised by a large number of small- and medium-sized building contractors – the industry has just shy of 13,500 enterprises – that tend to operate in relatively tight geographical markets. Generally, non-residential building contractors compete on reputation, timeliness, quality, technical capacity and quoted tender price. Only a handful of operators leverage the resources, expertise and operational scope to tender for large-scale complex developments. Given that larger projects require significant bankroll and typically have a longer project timeline, they are more susceptible to cost and deadline risk.

There are also a number of online resources you may find helpful:

- UK Construction Media, Output declines once more to end the decade, January 2020 (https://tinyurl.com/yjv3sne). Once more, construction industry output has staggered as a consequence of disruption in the political world with output measuring at a figure of 44.4 in the month of December after data from the previous month revealed an output measurement of 45.3. Perhaps the sharpest fall has been witnessed by the civil engineering subsector, as this industry mostly relies upon work commissioned by the public sector.

- CITB, Low but positive growth for UK construction amid Brexit uncertainty - The annual Construction Skills Network (CSN) report - a five-year forecast into the industry’s skills needs - anticipates construction growth of 1.3% across the UK, down a third of a percent on the previous year. The forecast is based on the scenario that the UK agrees an exit deal with the EU, rather than a ‘No Deal’ situation. (https://tinyurl.com/wh2myqg)

How can I find out about my competitors?

Business Gateway’s online guide to Competitor Analysis explains how to find your competitors, how to research what they’re doing and how to act on what you learn about them.

Immediate competition will be from other businesses in your local area. There are several online directories which can be used to find company information and generate lists easily and at no expense. Many Local Authorities also publish local business directories on the web. Below are some key web resources:

- General business directories such as Yell, Thomson Local or Google Maps
- Trade specialists like EuroPages (European directory), The Wholesaler or Free Index
- Business to business (B2B) specialists such as Kompass

Likewise, your local Chamber of Commerce may publish a members’ directory; find your local Chamber on the Scottish Chambers website.

Once you’ve identified who your competitors are, the next step is to gather information on the way they do business. Which services do they provide? How do they market themselves? How much do they charge?

To learn about your competitors:

- Look for articles or adverts in local newspapers, trade press and directories.
- Try to read their marketing material; if the company has an online presence, visit the company’s website as a first port of call. Not only does it give you a better understanding of the company’s activities, it can also offer a wealth of information such as a company history or staff biographies, as well as the company’s partners or suppliers
- Search for information on limited UK companies via the Companies House website
- Gain an insight into your competitor’s performance using credit checks and the accounts that limited companies are required to submit to Companies House each year.

We can provide credit checks free of charge; if you are interested in using this resource, or looking for us to help you find relevant publications, please contact us by emailing info@bgateway.com or by calling 0300 013 4753
What about suppliers?

Choosing and Managing Suppliers can help you decide what you need from a supplier, how to identify one and how to choose one to deal with.

Trade associations or industry specific organisations may also be able to recommend suppliers or contacts. You can also use the aforementioned resources for finding competitors to find suppliers.

Once you have decided on a supplier, we can run a credit check on the company to help assess their financial stability. We provide credit checks free of charge; if you are interested in using the resource please info@bgateway.com or by calling 0300 013 4753.

Who are my customers?

Your business plan should include information about the customers you would expect. Business Gateway’s guides on Retaining and Grow Your Customer Base will help you to identify who your customers are, how to use this information to sell more effectively and how to actively compete in your marketplace.

It can be useful to group your customers by geographical location, age or lifestyle. The websites listed below are freely available and can provide most of this information. If you can’t find what you’re looking for from these website, please contact us and one of the team will be happy to help:

- Access the latest population estimates from the National Records of Scotland (NRS). NRS also offers demographic factsheets for each council area in Scotland, which can provide summary statistics for the area you will be based in.
- Information from the most recent census in 2011 is released via the official website. See in particular the Census Area Profiles. Clicking on your area of interest will give the latest population figures, including estimates by age.
- Understanding Scottish Places has interactive profiles of towns and cities across Scotland. It can be useful for understanding the interrelationships and flows between towns, and also gives comparisons between two or more places.
- Scottish Government Statistics provide accurate and up-to-date statistics on Scotland, covering population, health, education and housing.
- The Scottish Household Survey provides information on the structure, characteristics, attitudes and behaviour of Scottish households, both at a national and local level.
- Office for National Statistics (ONS) is the recognised national statistical body for the UK. ONS covers a wide range of demographic, economic and social issues at a UK level.
